Col. Parker's Long Descent From Puritans.

FAMILY DATES FROM FAR BACK

The First Sam Parker on Record Married at Deaham, Mass., in 1657.

A BOSTON paper prints the following genealogical record of local interest:
5439. Parker. A relative of Samuel Parker, the Hawaiian, has kindly furnished the following, which is published at request of the editor of this department:
Samuel (whom we will call 1) Parker of Dedham, Mass., married, April 5, 1657, Sarah, born 1632, daughter of William and Winnifred Homans of Cambridge. He died Dec. 31, 1678. Had son Samuel (2), born 1659; married, first, Ruth —, died 1698; married, second, Mercy —, Ebenezer (3), supposed son of Samuel (2) and Mercy, married, first, Sarah Severns, Dec. 17, 1724; died July 5, 1736; had four children, Elisha, Margaret, Rebecca and Ruth. Ebenezer (3), married, second, in 1739, Mindwell Bird of Dorchester, Mass., and had two more children, Sarah and Samuel (4), born Oct. 25, 1742. Mindwell (Bird) Parker died in 1756, aged 45, and Ebenezer (3) married, third, Mary Goddard, Oct. 19, 1759. He died April 14, 1783, aged 51. Samuel (4) married, in 1770, Ann, daughter of Thomas Palmer. She was born Oct. 10, 1753, and died Aug. 17, 1841, aged 88. They had children: Mindwell (5), married in 1790 John Pigeon, Jr.; Hannah (5), called Ann, married June, 1803, Ebenezer Waiwai, and John Palmer Parker. Samuel (4) died April, 1822. John Palmer (5) Parker left Newton in 1809 and never returned. He sailed the seas and finally settled in the Sandwich Islands. Married a native Hawaiian woman, who was his wife for forty years. His son was the father of the present Samuel (7) Parker, the Hawaiian magnate and millionaire, who is said to have been offered the Governorship of Hawaii by President Roosevelt.

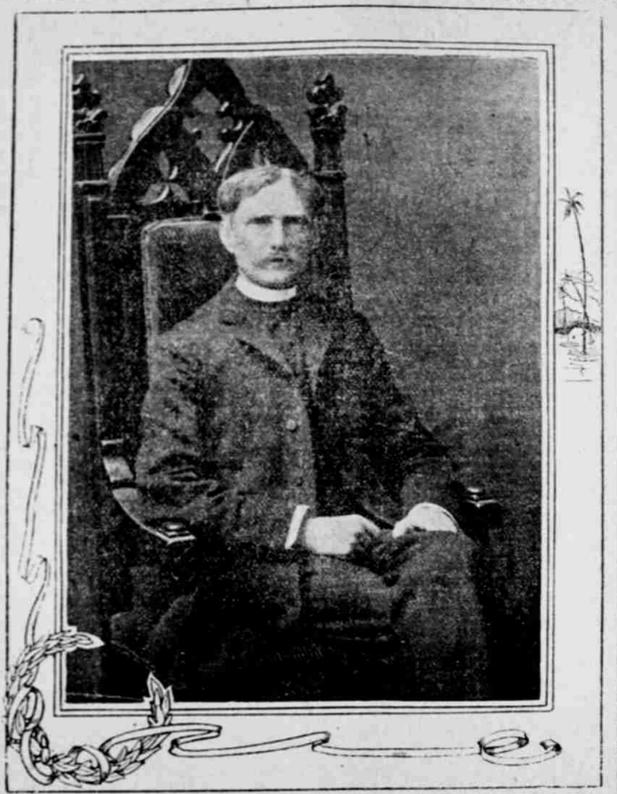

GOVERNOR DOLE VISITS OLD YALE

(Special to The Advertiser.)
NEW HAVEN, April 25.—Governor S. R. Dole, of Hawaii, passed through from New York to Boston today. At New Haven he was met by a committee of the Yale Hawaiian Club and driven in a carriage to the New Haven House. Other members of the Hawaiian Club of Yale met him there and the party then visited the Yale campus and saw the various university buildings, the new dining hall, the gymnasium, museum, library, chapel, etc.
It was Governor Dole's first visit to New Haven and to Yale and he seemed greatly pleased with all he saw.
An informal luncheon was served in the New Haven House. Besides the Governor, there were Miss Clara Dole, his niece, who had accompanied him from New York, and the following Yale Hawaiians: Maurice Damon, Henry Judd, Robert Bond, George Cooke and Charles Judd.
Governor Dole met several of the other Hawaiians who were unable to be present at the luncheon.
He was handed a recent copy of the Hawaiian Gazette and was greatly pleased to learn of the result of the recent election in the Fourth district.
At the table the discussion was mainly about Hawaiian matters—the recent rains, forestry, fishing, agriculture, etc. The Governor hoped that all the collegians present would return to Hawaii after graduation and do their work in the upbuilding of the Territory.
Messrs. Judd and Bond escorted them to the train and saw them safely started for Boston. The Governor will be there a week and then return to New York, after which he will soon start for Honolulu.
Archbishop Corrigan's condition has greatly improved, the pneumonia being thoroughly broken.

A new 16-inch gun is to be tried which is expected to throw a shell 21 miles.

REV. HENRY BOND RESTARICK BISHOP-ELECT OF HONOLULU

THE following correspondence, though somewhat delayed in transmission, contains enough that is new to make it interesting to The Advertiser's readers:
(Special to The Advertiser.)
CINCINNATI, April 17.—At the session of the house of bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church, held in this city April 16 and 17, in the parish house of Christ Church, East Fourth street, three missionary bishops were elected and three bishops for the National Episcopal church of Mexico. The three missionary bishops were for Salina, Kas.; Porto Rico and Honolulu. The Honolulu bishopric was by far the most important place to fill on account of the frictions which for some years have obtained among the Episcopalians of that country. Bishop Potter of New York, who was sent to Hawaii for the express purpose of investigating the causes of the trouble and suggesting a remedy, was one of the principal figures at the session just closed. In regard to the Hawaiian matter, he said to your correspondent: "I believe the bishop-elect for Honolulu is particularly well fitted for his mission of conciliating the two sides of the Episcopal church of that country. The cause of trouble over there is well known. The former Anglican bishop, Right Rev. Alfred Willis, D. D., who was in office since 1872, was not fortunate in securing harmony among the members of the church. Before the annexation of Hawaii the anti-American feeling among the Anglicans was perhaps very pronounced and intense, but since the annexation this hardly enters into the situation. In fact, I do not think this phase had much to do with the trouble from the beginning. Bishop Willis, it appears, experienced no difficulty with the American side of the church. As he resigned his office, the way was clear for the election of an American bishop. The selection of Rev. Henry Bond Restarick, of San Diego, Cal., for the place is an exceedingly fortunate one. He is an Englishman by birth and, if there are any prejudices, this ought to make him all the more acceptable and agreeable to the American side. But he has personal qualifications, I understand, which eminently fit him for the place. He is a thorough American, too, in taste and progressive ideas. I believe under his administration the Episcopal church of Hawaii will not only be restored to perfect peace and harmony, but that it will be on the road to much prosperity. At present it is a weak church, but it can be made strong."
Right Rev. J. H. Johnson, D. D., bishop of Los Angeles, Cal., under whom the bishop-elect of Honolulu has been carrying on his work for many years, gives Rev. Mr. Restarick the highest recommendation. Among other things he said to your correspondent: "A better choice for this difficult position could not have been made. Mr. Restarick has built up one of the finest congregations in the United States at San Diego, where he has had charge of the same congregation for twenty years. The congregation is cosmopolitan in character and the pastor has shown his faculty of being able to cement together the different kinds of people and make them work together."

SOME IDEAS ABOUT THE PROPOSED HONOLULU FIESTA

EDITOR Advertiser: Suppose a company or committee is formed, called the "Fiesta Entertainment Committee," and is composed of all merchants and others, in any way deriving benefits from such attractions, so as to represent their individual interests.
This company, or possibly compact, will elect from the general meeting, a strong committee to operate the whole proposition.
Let it be understood that each merchant, or corporation, or institution, shall bind himself to give free, the services of one clerk, or other responsible member of his house, to devote his entire time, as this committee shall direct.
Operate this entertainment, if possible, during the moonlight season, opening with boat races at Pearl Harbor at 5:30 p. m. Monday, followed, at same place, by moonlight luau at 6:30 a. m. band, and water fireworks display at 8:30, returning to city at 10 o'clock. For trip to Pearl Harbor arrange charges with railroad people, they to return committee a percentage of railroad receipts.
For admission to luau charge 20 cents.
Tuesday night, receive the "Queen of the Fiesta," who shall arrive that day from Kauai. The selection of this queen will give the Kaula people an especial interest in bringing them to the city.
Let her reach here not earlier than 7 p. m. to be met by a fleet of small boats and tugs, and escorted to anchor off foot of Fort street, followed by firing of guns and water festival, fireworks, burning tar barrels, etc. Issue tickets for viewing this at 10 cents per head. Place National Guard men on all streets approaching the harbor as guards, with light fence across street, and committee's agent to stand at each street, selling and collecting admission tickets.
Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, queen to land, escorted by National Guard, fire department, polo riders and any other organization suggested.
Same evening at 8 o'clock, grand public masquerade ball, under patronage of the queen. I suggest this ball be held at Drill Shed and admission fee of 25 cents charged.
Thursday at 10 a. m., football game; 2:30, p. m., baseball game. Admission fee small.
Thursday evening, dance and entertainment by all school children.
Friday morning, floral procession, followed by floral offerings of school children to queen; speeches of children. May pole of children before queen and dance of minuet. Have this take place on Punahou grounds on a temporary stand. Charge admission to grounds; charge for refreshments to children; arrange for commission from electric railroad company.
Friday afternoon, horse racing at park. Charge small fee for admission; make no distinction.
Saturday, general picnic day, foot-racing, greased pig and other sports, at Punahou grounds; charge admission; arrange commission with railroad company.
Saturday evening at 7:30, torchlight procession and grand farewell to the queen.
The trend of this whole suggestion is to try and make this a self-paying proposition by giving good attractions and charging small fees.
When program is all formulated, then come before merchants with subscription lists and represent to them that any proceeds remaining over will be paid back to those subscribing in such dividend as is possible.
The idea is not to make any money, but to try and compensate the merchants for their subscription.

FRIEMAN TURNS UP

Long Missing Man Discovered in London.

GEORGE LYCURGUS RUNS ACROSS HIM

He and His First Wife Are Conducting a Hotel and Teaching Languages.

MANY Honoluluans will recall Ben Friemann, the caterer who came here in 1893 from Portland, Ore., and hired the spacious Paty house on the Nuuanu road for a suburban hotel and cafe. Later he became steward of Sans Souci and then of the Hawaiian Hotel. From here he went to Australia with a sleight-of-hand man and from there started for Egypt. His wife, the third Mrs. Friemann, stayed here for a time and then went to San Francisco, where she presumably now is. She has been trying for years to find out whether her husband is alive or dead. The last she heard of him he had left Australia for Egypt.
Yesterday The Advertiser got word of Friemann's whereabouts through George Lycurgus, who met him in London. George's letter, enclosing Friemann's business card, is as follows:
Grand Hotel, London, April 19, 1902.
Dear Sir:
You see I discover Friemann and Mrs. first Friemann. She's here and she is working in bar so Friemann told me. This afternoon I leave for Nice and then Monte Carlo, Aloha, and then Monte Carlo, Aloha.
GEORGE LYCURGUS.

The enclosed card reads as follows:

First Class Board and Residence and Superior Apartments.

All Convenience.
Conservatory, Garden, Baths, Smoking Room.
Madam B. Friemann, Proprietress.
On the other side of the card Mr. Friemann announced a side line as follows:
FOLLOWING LANGUAGES SPOKEN
English, Italian, Norwegian, Turkish, German, Spanish, Swedish, Arabic, French, Greek, Danish, and others.
Representative Sibley of Pennsylvania created a sensation during the agricultural bill debate by denouncing General Jacob H. Smith as a "disgrace to the uniform he wore."
